Carson nach fheuch sibh e am-bliadhna?

LITERATURE & CREATIVE COMPETITIONS

Did you know that not every Royal National Mòd competition involves performing on stage?

Our literature and creative competitions are a fantastic way for people of all ages to get involved, showcase their creativity and celebrate Gaelic through writing, music and art.

Competitors can often use work they have already created previously in class, for coursework, personal projects or local competitions — making it even easier to take part.

There are fantastic prizes to be won across a wide range of categories, including:

- Short stories
- Poetry
- Newspaper and article writing
- Playwriting
- Poster and artwork design
- Podcasts

Whether you love creative writing, journalism, drama or visual art, there's something for everyone.

We'd also encourage conductors and musicians to consider entering the choral arrangement competition. If you enjoy creating or adapting music for choirs, this is a wonderful opportunity to share your work with the wider Gaelic community.

And for adult composers and songwriters — don't forget about the new song competition! We'd love to hear fresh new material which could become part of future Mòds for years to come.

100 YEARS OF MÒD ÀIRD NAM MURCHAN

It is remarkable to reflect upon the journey of Mòd Àird Nam Murchan, which has now reached its centenary. We are not sure whether the original committee of 1926 could have imagined that, a hundred years later, this event would remain the principal Gaelic gathering in the area, continuing to bring communities together and uphold cultural heritage. To commemorate this significant milestone, the 2026 committee has arranged a weekend brimming with festivities and celebration.

Building on the success of last year's venue in Acharacle, this year's Mòd will once again take place at Acharacle Primary School. The event is scheduled for Friday, 19th June and will see participants from all local schools, including Acharacle, Ardgour, Lochaline, Kilchoan, Strontian, and Ardnamurchan High School. Competitors and spectators will also travel from Mallaig, Oban, Fort William, Mull, and further afield to join in the celebrations.

The day's competitions will be overseen by Gaelic adjudicators, DI Brown, Kerrie Kennedy, Dawn MacPhie, and Alasdair Whyte and Music adjudicators Stuart Jackson, Robert Nairn Lisa Robertson and Angus Tully.

Festivities continue on Saturday, 20 June, at Strontian Church & Village Hall. With support from Dualchas, the Rockfield Centre in Oban, as well as former winners and their families, a special exhibition has been curated. This exhibition, will feature a collection of archive materials, memories, photographs, and stories from the past century of the Mòd, opening for visitors at 5.30pm. This will everyone the opportunity to have a look at the material before the evening festivities.

Following the exhibition, a family ceilidh will take place at 6.30pm, showcasing performances from local artists and music by the Robert Nairn Ceilidh Band. Guests will also enjoy food and the opportunity to purchase raffle tickets. BYOB.

The committee look forward to welcoming members of the wider community to share in this historic occasion and ensure Gaelic traditions, music, and song will flourish for generations yet to come.
